Dear Brooke,

I am a UFCW member in good standing and employed at Save-on #946 in Mission.

I have recently been approached by a number of customers regarding the leafleting and the labour dispute at the OFG warehouse.

I have been handed notes and altered leaflets from customers while on duty, as I am sure too, have many of my co-workers.

I am unsure as to how to direct their comments and their requests. What are some things members can and can't do, in the workplace to support our brothers and sisters?

Direction and information for members caught in the middle regarding the dispute have not been given.

Please advise ASAP and please respond in writing. Thank you in advance.
